

Busyness Indicator

1. Irritability - You get mad, frustrated, or just annoyed way too easily. Little, normal things irk you. People have to tiptoe around your ongoing low-grade negativity, if not anger. Word of advice from an eggshell-expert: to self-diagnose, don't look at how you treat a colleague or neighbor; look at how you treat those closest to you: your spouse, children, roommate, etc.

2. Hypersensitivity - All it takes is a minor comment to hurt your feelings, a grumpy email to set you off, or a little turn of events to throw you into an emotional funk and ruin your day. Minor things quickly escalate to major emotional events. Depending on your personality, this might show up as anger or nitpicky-ness or anxiety or depression or just tiredness. Point is, ordinary problems have a disproportionate effect on your emotional well-being and relational grace. You can't seem to roll with the punches. _____
3. Restlessness - When you actually do try to slow down and rest, you can't relax. You give a Sabbath a try, and you hate it. You read Scripture but find it boring. You have quiet time with God but can't focus on your mind. You go to bed early but toss and turn with anxiety. You watch TV but simultaneously check your phone, fold laundry, and get into a spat on Twitter (okay, maybe you just answer an email). Your mind and body are hyped up on the drug of speed, and when they don't get the next dopamine fix, they shiver. _____
4. Workaholism (or just nonstop activity) - You just don't know when to stop. Or worse, you can't stop. Another hour, another day, another week. Your drugs of choice are accomplishment and accumulation. These could show up as careerism or just as obsessive house cleaning and errand running. Result: you fall prey to "sunset fatigue," where by day's end you have nothing left to give to your spouse, children, or loved ones. They get the grouchy, overtired you, and it's not pretty. _____
5. Emotional numbness - You just don't have the capacity to feel another's pain. Or your own pain for that matter. Empathy is a rare feeling for you. You just don't have the time for it. You live in this kind of constant fugue. _____
6. Out-of-order priorities -You feel disconnected from your identity and calling. You're always getting sucked into the tyranny of the urgent, not the important. Your life is reactive, not proactive. You're busier than ever before yet still feel like you don't have time for what really matters to you. Months often go by or years—or, God forbid, maybe it's been decades—and you realize you still haven't gotten around to all the things you said were most important in your life. _____

7. Lack of care for your body - You don't have time for the basics: eight hours of sleep a night; daily exercise; healthy, home-cooked food; minimal stimulants; margin. You gain weight. Get sick multiple times a year. Regularly wake up tired. Don't sleep well. Live off the four horsemen of the industrialized food apocalypse: caffeine, sugar, processed carbs, and alcohol. _____
8. Escapist Behaviors - When we're too tired to do what's actually life-giving for our souls, we each turn to our distraction of choice: overeating, overdrinking, binge-watching Netflix, browsing social media, surfing the web, looking at porn—name your preferred cultural narcotic. Some narcotics can be good, healthy even, on an occasional and short-term basis when they shield us from unnecessary pain; but when we abuse them to escape from reality, they eat us alive. You find yourself stuck in the negative feedback loop of socially acceptable addictions. _____
9. Slippage of Spiritual Disciplines - Typically, the things that are truly life giving for your soul are the first to go rather than your first to go to—such as quiet time in the morning, Scripture, prayer, Sabbath, worship on Sunday, a meal with your community, and so on.

So instead of life with God, you settle for life with a Netflix subscription and a glass of cheap red wine. A very poor substitute. Not because time wasted on TV is the great Satan but because we rarely get done binge-watching anything (or posting to social media, or overeating Five Guys burgers and fries, etc.) and feel awake and alive in your soul, rested, refreshed, and ready for a new day. You delay the inevitable: an emotional crash. And as a consequence, you miss out on the life-giving sense of the with-ness of God. _____

10. Isolation - You feel disconnected from God, others, and your own soul. On those rare times when you actually stop to pray (not simply asking God for stuff; but sitting with God in the quiet), you're so stressed and distracted that your mind can't settle down long enough to enjoy God's company. Same with your friends: when you're with them, you're also with your phone or a million miles away in your mind, running down the to-do list. And even when you're alone, you come face to face with the void that is your soul and immediately run back to the familiar groove of busyness and digital distraction. _____

_____ out of 10